A MANORIAL WORLD

September 21st-23rd 2017 at
Gammel Estrup - The Manor Museum, Denmark

The Danish Research Centre for Manorial Studies will host the conference at Gammel Estrup – the Manor Museum, Denmark. The 2017 conference is the third meeting of the ENCOUNTER and this year's theme will be on the landscapes of the North European manors and country houses. Not just the grand estates but all manors and country houses, large and small, have had a notable influence, and they still play an important role in the physical outline as well as the identity of place in contemporary European rural communities. The programme consists of two conference days and one excursion day, and will present papers from Germany, Great Britain, Norway, Sweden, The Netherlands and Denmark.

WHY ATTEND THIS CONFERENCE?

Join your European colleagues for three days of manor and country house history, hear from our esteemed speakers, network with international specialists and gain valuable insights during this premier interdisciplinary gathering of manor and country house experts from museums and universities across Europe.

The city of Aarhus, only 40 kilometres from Gammel Estrup, and the 18 other municipalities in Central Denmark Region celebrates the year 2017 as European Capital of Culture. Experience the extensive and exciting programme while visiting the region: <http://aarhus2017.dk/en/>
