HISTORY THROUGH THEIR EYES

DIGITIZATION > DISCOVERY > DIVERSITY

Enrich eighteenth-century studies with resources that support equitable, diverse, and inclusive research. Gale helps connect researchers to primary sources that share unique insights into women's rights, racial inequalities, and more from firsthand perspectives.

All members of the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies (ASECS) have access to Eighteenth Century Collections Online, Gale's premier archive for advanced study of the eighteenth century.

Eighteenth-Century Studies rare and unique content from the eighteenth century at gale.com/18th-century-history, or visit us at the ASECS Annual Meeting.

2023 LAND ACKNOWLEDGMENT

We acknowledge that the 2023 Annual Meeting of the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies takes place on the historic and contemporary homelands of the Osage Nation, Missouri, and Illini Confederacy. In offering this land acknowledgement, we honor and respect the ancestral people who lived here, and acknowledge the contributions made by the over 183,000 indigenous individuals who live in Missouri today.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Meeting Location: All sessions and events listed in the program, unless otherwise noted, will take place at the St. Louis Hyatt Regency at the Arch, USA. Floorplans of the hotel may be found in the ASECS Annual Meeting app, and below.

Registration, Information, and PPE are available at the ASECS Registration Desk located near the escalators on the second floor of the hotel. ASECS will have a limited supply of KN95 masks for those who forget or misplace their own mask, and an even more limited supply of rapid Covid tests, in cases of emergency. The main program for this year's Annual Meeting is the ASECS 2023 app. A PDF of the program is also available on the Meeting page: <https://www.asecs.org/annual-meeting>.

ASECS Membership: The Annual Meeting is sponsored by the Executive Board for the benefit of the Society's membership. Interested persons may join the Society by contacting John Hopkins University Press at <https://asecs.press.jhu.edu/membership/join>. Participants whose names appear in the Annual Meeting program must be members of ASECS or of a constituent society of ISECS or official guests of the Society.

Book Exhibit: The publishers' book exhibit will be open Thursday from 8 am to 7 pm, Friday from 8am through the conclusion of the Affiliates Reception, and Saturday from 8 am to 2 pm. A list of participating publishers appears in the front of this program and under the sponsorship tab of the Annual Meeting app.

Refund Policy: All cancellations made prior to February 11 will receive a full refund of registration, less a $15 service charge. Refunds will be offered after that date in cases of medical emergency. No-shows will forfeit their registration and fees for optional meals and events.

All-Gender Restrooms: All are welcome to use the restroom that best fits their identity. All-gender restrooms will be available on the second floor.

HEALTH AND SAFETY PROTOCOLS

- Members will need to show proof of COVID-19 vaccination plus at least one booster at the registration desk OR to show proof of a negative PCR test dated within 72 hours of the conference. Vaccines are a safe and proven way to reduce the transmission and severity of COVID-19. ASECS will make a few COVID-19 tests available at the registration desk; attendees are encouraged to bring their own.
- Members are strongly encouraged to wear masks in all public spaces; it is possible that masks will be required depending on local conditions. Masking is a simple and proven way to reduce the spread of COVID-19 at large indoor gatherings. We will have some masks available at the registration table, but participants should bring their own.
- If you exhibit COVID-19 symptoms, you should quarantine in your room and inform the Executive Director Benita Blessing at director@asecs.org (subject line: confidential). The director will not release your name, but she will let the general conference attendees know via the conference app that there has been a possible conference exposure so that attendees can decide whether to get tested before returning home.

LACTATION ROOM

Mills 9 (fourth floor) will be available during breakout session times on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday as the lactation room; the key can be checked out at the conference registration desk.

QUIET ROOM

Mills 8 (fourth floor) will be available during breakout session times on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday as a quiet room; the key can be checked out at the conference registration desk.

ACCESSIBILITY GUIDELINES FOR SESSION CHAIRS AND PRESENTERS

ASECS continues to be committed to making arrangements that allow all members of the association to participate in our Annual Meeting. The responsibility for achieving full participation rests with all panel chairs, presenters, and speakers. Session chairs should ensure that panelists make their talks accessible by reminding them in advance of the Society's policies as described below. Session chairs should also ascertain in advance whether panelists themselves have accessibility needs.

Papers, Handouts and Audiovisuals: Presenters, including roundtable participants, should bring at least two copies of their papers or remarks, with at least one copy in large print (16 or 18 boldface type), even if the text is only in draft or outline form, for the use of members who need to follow a written text. Speakers who use handouts should prepare two to three additional copies in large print and should avoid using colored paper. Handouts should be briefly described orally or read aloud to the audience. Accessibility copies of papers may also be shared in advance through the ASECS 2023 Annual Meeting app, as links or pdf files. To have accessibility copies posted to the app, please contact the ASECS Business Office at asecsoffice@gmail.com.

Chairs should collect accessibility copies for distribution at the start of the session, distribute the copies to those who request them, and retrieve them at the session's end. Presenters may mark accessibility copies with "Do Not Circulate/Cite Without Permission" and ask for copies to be returned at the end of the session. If you have made a digital copy of your presentation available, please alert your audience to the availability of the digital version as you begin your talk, and feel free to remove access after your session.

For PowerPoint presentations: A simple design with minimal text (6 or fewer lines) and the largest possible font is the most accessible. Presenters should describe orally any images on the slides.

When referring to a visual aid or handout, or when indicating the location of materials in the room, allow time for audience members to follow this information. Projectors should be turned off when not in use, to reduce background noise.

Room Set-Up: Space has been left for two wheelchairs in each meeting room. Keep this area as well as doorways and aisles clear for persons who may be using wheelchairs, canes, crutches, or motorized vehicles. In addition to the table for the panelists, all rooms will have at least one table at the front of the room to provide a writing surface for audience members.

Communication and Presentation: Microphones and speakers will be available in 5 breakout rooms: Regency E, Regency F, Sterling 3, Sterling 9, and Mills 3. Speak clearly and distinctly but do not shout. Do not slow down unless asked by members of the audience. Speakers should repeat questions or statements made by audience members. Session chairs should ensure that only one person speaks at a time. In discussions, speakers should identify themselves so that audience members know who is speaking.

EIGHTEENTH-CENTURY CAFÉS

This year ASECS is pleased to introduce Eighteenth-Century Cafés, casual sessions that provide an opportunity for members to participate in informal small discussions around pertinent topics. Grab some coffee and be part of the conversation while connecting with other members. All Cafés will take place at Regency A/B. Registration is not required.

CALL FOR PAPERS
Studies in Eighteenth-Century Culture, Volume 54

Studies in Eighteenth-Century Culture is an interdisciplinary peer-reviewed journal published annually for the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies (ASECS) by the Johns Hopkins University Press. SECC publishes revised versions of papers and roundtable remarks presented in any public venue in the previous two years by a member of ASECS or of a learned society affiliated with ASECS or ISECS. This includes papers given virtually or online. Digitized as part of Project Muse, SECC is a membership benefit of Patrons and Sponsoring Members of ASECS and is offered to all members at a discount.

For our next volume, Volume 54, the editors invite provocative and rigorous essays that chart out new directions for research on the cultures of the long eighteenth century, including contributions to history, literary history, the history of visual art, theatre and performance studies, musicology, material culture studies, gender and sexuality studies, and the studies of race, indigeneity, and empire. Essays from under-represented areas of inquiry are particularly welcome.

The editors are committed to publishing not only individual essays, but also one or more “clusters” of contributions that stem from the same panel or roundtable (or, in the case of double or triple sessions on a shared topic, the same series of panels or roundtables). If you are a session chair interested in pursuing this option, please contact the editors soon after your conference or other public event has concluded in order to confirm that your cluster is of an appropriate scope and to determine the best length for the individual contributions.

Guidelines for Submission to Volume 54: Revised versions of papers and roundtable remarks presented in any public venue by a member of ASECS or of a learned society affiliated with ASECS or ISECS between JULY 1, 2021 and JUNE 30, 2023 are eligible for consideration. Single essay submissions are typically between 5,000 and 10,000 words in length, including notes, although we will consider substantively revised contributions of other lengths. Submissions are normally in English and should follow the 17th edition of The Chicago Manual of Style. Submissions will be evaluated through blind peer review. Authors are therefore asked to avoid identifying themselves, and references to one’s own scholarship should be made in the third person. We cannot consider papers already submitted to other journals. The deadline for submission is AUGUST 15, 2023. Please send all inquiries and submissions to David Brewer <brewer.126@osu.edu> and Crystal Lake <lake.crystal@gmail.com>.

The State of Academic Freedom
Facilitator: Miriam L. WALLACE, New College of Florida

As laborers in higher education, we tend to assume academic freedom as a baseline: the liberty to conduct research, choose methodologies, and draw conclusions without interference; an individual instructor's right to select course content, pedagogical approach, and assignment design. As scholars of the era that founds the world we current inhabit, we often feel particular responsibility to draw the connections between our period of study and its legacies for good and ill in our current moment. But recent events including politicized attacks on diversity initiatives and trans people, undermining the AP African American history curriculum, and the complete unmaking of a small college in the name of "free speech" and "civil discourse" call on us to unite to protect the liberty of faculty and students to pursue knowledge and ask difficult questions. Come learn what's happening, the methods being used to silence us, and to strategize about how we can respond as scholars, teachers, and human beings. <https://www.oah.org/about/governance/policies/academic-freedom-guidelines-and-best-practices/>

Sessions X: Saturday 8:00–9:30am

128. Eighteenth-Century Café, sponsored by the Lewis Walpole Library: Regency A/B Land Sovereignty and the (De)Colonial Biosphere: Recentering Indigenous Relations to the Living World [Race & Empire Caucus]

Facilitators: Kathleen T. ALVES, Queensborough Community College-City University of New York, Megan PEISER (Choctaw), Oakland University, and Willow WHITE, University of Alberta

In a 2017 article, Heather Davis and Zoe Todd (Métis/otipemisiw) call for a decolonization of the concept of the Anthropocene in work on climate change and environmental emergency. “The Anthropocene betrays itself in its name,” they write: “in its reassertion of universality, it implicitly aligns itself with the colonial era. By making the relations between the Anthropocene and colonialism explicit, we are then in a position to understand our current ecological crisis and to take the steps needed to move away from this ecocidal path.” The same year, Kyle White (Potawatomi) argued that climate change can only be effectively addressed by following the lead of Indigenous studies that have long understood environmental crisis as a form of “intensified colonialism.” We invite conversation respond to these calls—to explicate the colonial frameworks that remain active in predominant scientific and academic approaches to the biosphere, and to propose non-colonizing and anticolonial methodologies for recentering Indigenous sovereignty, stewardship, and place-thought in collective refusals of ecocide.

PRIZES, AWARDS & LIBRARY FELLOWSHIPS

PRIZES

The Louis A. Gottschalk Prize recognizes annually the ASECS member who writes the best book-length study in any field related to the eighteenth century.

The Annibel Jenkins Biography Prize of $1000 recognizes the best book-length biography of a Restoration or eighteenth-century subject. Awarded biannually.

The James L. Clifford Prize goes to the author of an article on an outstanding study of an aspect of eighteenth-century culture, interesting to any eighteenth-century specialist, regardless of discipline. It carries an award of $500.

The Srinivas Aravamudan Prize goes to the author of an article published in the previous year that pushes the boundaries, geographical and conceptual, of eighteenth-century studies, especially by using a transnational, comparative, or cosmopolitan approach. It carries an award of $250.

The Hans Turley Prize in Queer Eighteenth-Century Studies is a biennial award of $250 given to the best paper on a topic in LGBTQ Studies delivered at the ASECS Annual Meeting by a graduate student, an untenured faculty member, or an independent scholar.

The Innovative Course Design Competition awards three $500 prizes annually in recognition of distinguished, creative teaching.

Graduate Student Research Paper Prize is a $200 award given to an outstanding research essay of 15-30 pages that has not been previously published.

Graduate Student Conference Paper Prize of $200 is given for the best paper presented by a graduate student at the ASECS Annual Meeting.

The Race and Empire Caucus Graduate Student Essay Prize is given to a revised version of a conference paper that combines the multifarious legacy of post-colonial and/or critical race studies with the analysis of eighteenth-century literature and culture.

RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS AND TRAVEL AWARDS

The Mary D. Sheriff Travel and Research Award is a biennial award of $2,000 that supports research into feminist topics in eighteenth-century art history and visual culture.

ASECS Women's Caucus Editing and Translation Fellowship is an annual award of $1,000 to support an editing or a translation work-in-progress of an eighteenth-century primary text on a feminist or a Women's Studies subject.

The Émilie Du Châtelet Award of $500 is made by the ASECS Women's Caucus to support research in progress by an independent or adjunct scholar on a feminist or women's studies subject.

The Women's Caucus Intersectional Award is an annual award of $500 that recognizes scholarship on gender, race, and other intersectional dimensions with a focus on women in the eighteenth century.

The Gwin J. and Ruth Kolb Research Travel Fellowship of $500 supplements costs for early career eighteenth-century scholars to travel to distant collections in North America and abroad.

The Robert R. Palmer Research Travel Fellowship of $500 supports documentary research related primarily to the history and culture of France.

The Aubrey L. Williams Research Travel Fellowship of $1500 supports documentary research in eighteenth-century English literature, by American-based doctoral students.

The International Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies (ISECS)

ASECS is a member of ISECS, an umbrella organization comprising 33 eighteenth-century societies from around the world. ISECS was founded to promote the growth, development and coordination of studies and research relating to the eighteenth century in all aspects of its cultural heritage (historical, philosophical, ideological, religious, linguistic, literary, scientific, artistic, juridical) in all countries, without exception.

Every four years, ISECS holds an International Congress on the Enlightenment. The next International Congress will take place in Rome in 2023. ISECS also hosts an annual International Seminar for Early Career Eighteenth-Century Scholars. ASECS members are eligible to submit proposals to participate in the Congress and apply to participate in the Seminar.
